WHEREAS, it was reported that the University of Perpetual Help Delta System (UPHDS) Extension School, which operates inside the New Bilibid Prisons, seeks to provide inmates with the opportunities to develop themselves professionally, socially, culturally and spiritually, so that the bitterness, apathy, indifference and hopelessness because of long empty years of incarceration may be replaced with a sense of hope, dignity, self-respect, self-reliance and faith in the goodness of man and of the Divine Being;

WHEREAS, the campus inside the prison reportedly started in June 1984 through an agreement between the University of Perpetual Help Rizal-Las Pinas, Rotary Club of Las Pinas, and the Bureau of Corrections;

WHEREAS, every year the prison extension school allegedly accepts about 80 new students, who must have finished high school and should pass an entrance test and an interview;

WHEREAS, aside a commerce degree program, the New Bilibid Prisons also reportedly offers alternative learning programs' for preschool, elementary and high school levels accredited by the Department of Education;

WHEREAS, the view that a prison is intended solely for the punishment of persons who have committed wrongs to the society has long been an obsolete concept; the more progressive view is that a prison system should also seek, not only to punish, but also to rehabilitate;

WHEREAS, it is a fact that ex-convicts find it hard to find jobs when they get out of prison and this is a problem that will make it difficult for them to rejoin their respective communities as productive and good citizens;

WHEREAS, the educational program offered at the New Bilibid Prisons is a helpful tool that will enable ex-convicts to find jobs after serving sentence, thereby restoring their dignity and self-respect;

WHEREAS, the Government is enjoined to infuse resources that will bolster the ongoing education programs, and to encourage more public and private funding for its more effective operation;

WHEREFORE, be it hereby resolved by the Philippine Senate, to direct the proper Senate Committee to conduct an inquiry in aid of legislation, on the reported need to strengthen the degree programs offered in the New Bilibid Prisons by encouraging more public and private support
